The paradox of a university:
Always the same
But always changing

At West Virginia University
1969-1970 was a year of more change than most years

All-pervading
All-invigorating
Always a sense of
CHANGE

CHANGE

CHANGE

CHANGE

In morals and manners:

Liberation from supercilious "morals" frees man for genuine morality.

In political ideologies and personal theologies:

Rethinking old maxims generates a new faith in old systems for some and creates a proud hope for new systems for others.

In issues:

From peace marches to panty raids ranged the opportunities for "grouping"; each chose the problems to face and those to avoid.

In art:

Playgoers still applauded the big productions at the Creative Arts Center, but even passers-by could view issue-oriented guerrilla theatre in and around the Mountainlair. Films were talked about, analyzed, appreciated, received as art.

In the air and the land:

Ecological warfare isn't remote and distant as Vietnam is; every day in Morgantown, the skies get a little more murky, the Monongahela gets a little more sterile, and nature in general gets raped a little more.

In airing grievances:

Upset students channeled their anger and disappointment, their fears and desires for change, into ad hoc committees, fasts, celebrations, demonstrations, marches, conferences, trips to D.C.—anything that offered a chance for change.

In publications:

The Daily Athenaeum completed its last year as a product of journalism laboratories, the Greeks came out with the Greek Letter, and radicalism found a new outlet in The Liberator.

In people

In life styles

In life itself?

"I am firm, you are obstinate, he is a bull-headed fool."

"I have reconsidered, you have changed your mind, he has gone back on his word."

These are examples of the "Irregular Conjugations" with which one linguist entertains himself while pondering the nature of men and their opinions. Any three of us can see the same event as very good, very bad, and very indifferent. What is happening on campuses in 1969-1970 also lends itself to such "conjugation": A single professor may be a high-minded intellectual, an average faculty member, and a pointy-headed snob to three different observers. Greeks are cool, straight, or reactionary; liberated students are disillusioned flower children, plain old hippies, or threats to the security of America. With all the rhetorical possibilities, observers and participants alike are hard put to maintain a clear understanding of just what is happening on campuses, and on this campus.

The one thing happening is CHANGE. Change is the atmosphere, the air of WVU 1969-1970. Change is in the newspapers, in the streets, in the classrooms, in the thoughts and lives of the people of WVU. Change is liberalization, or it is the process of discovering new reasons for conservative positions. Change is a new way of doing things, or it is a better way of doing old things. Change is the liberation of the people and of the self, or it is the manifestation of a Communist plot. Change is finding more and more independence and finding it in a group. But CHANGE IS.

Old orders are yielding way to new, and newness is still trying to find its own order. Change is the now between the old and the new, the present between the past and the future.

Change is photographing campus beauties in miniskirts, when they used to pose in fully-gathered skirts and bobby socks. Change is deciding for yourself on love, sex, and marriage—whatever order they come in. Change is watching campus political parties wrangle over meaningful issues. Change is Greeks whose friends are freaks and vice versa. Change is hearing fascism defined in terms of America instead of Italy. Change is personal, national, cultural, world-wide. Change is economic, social, political. Change is as small as the dot on the "i" in independence and as large as a war that is thought about as well as fought. Change is acting on your thoughts, living up to them.

All of us are involved in the ebbs and flows of change. Our speech patterns reflect the changes of life styles. The language of the drug and pot scene is probably much more prevalent than pills and grass are. Selections on the juke box seldom rhyme moon and June or even yummy and tummy any more. Now it's Mother Mary whispering words of wisdom, "Let it be, let it be," and Simon and Garfunkel singing for world-weary lovers, "like a bridge over troubled waters, I lay me down." Hemlines, having "gone about as far as they can go," threatened to sink below the knees, but didn't. So what's in a hemline? Perhaps fashions are as significant as any other indicator of the general mood of a group, and dresses here signal a freer and easier slant on life. People who have it, are flaunting it. "It" is style, flair, the love of life. It is also concern, activism, involvement.

YOUR ENVIRONMENT IS KILLING YOU

In a single year—

Change, evolutionary or revolutionary, is difficult to meter, but it can be captured partially on a calendar. We can say this happened then. and this afterwards, and perhaps years later we can look back and see why.

Demonstrations gave the most evidence of change at WVU in 1969-1970. War and war-makers are seemingly perennial objects of demonstration anathema, at least to us whose lives span only the Vietnam War. But other issues also brought people into committees and into the streets. Black awareness, the environment, women's liberation, campus safety and security —every approach to a problem has its supporters and detractors, and it seems one could not name a campus concern that would not have someone, somewhere at WVU, working on it.

—SEPTEMBER—

Several things were new and changed when classes started in the fall. Sophomore and upperclass women found themselves with privileges their male counterparts had long enjoyed, thanks to the no-hours policy initiated in dorms. But the matter of where those women lived was still determined by the in loco parentis character of the University; Like it or not, women under 21 lived in the dormitories. Also over the summer, the cheering squad, so prominent a part of the football tradition, was integrated.

—OCTOBER—

With the school year well underway, anti-war planning began at WVU. Faculty, students, and townspeople met a month early to organize Morgantown participation in the nationwide October Moratorium. "No more business as usual while the war goes on" was the motivating philosophy of the Moratorium. One early headline foreshadowed an issue that would climax University demonstrations in May: "Moratorium requests denied as Harlow refuses 'U' stand."

The 24-hour observance included a Freedom School, rallies, memorial service, peace walk, public meeting at the Court house square, a Mind Garage peace concert, the vigil and fasting, and films. "All we are saying is 'Give peace a chance,' " candlelight, the breaking of bread, Woodburn striking midnight of October 15—the conclusion of the peace demonstration was itself as peaceful as a youthful church camp service.

Polarization, mild as it was then, followed the articles and explanations of Vietnam positions of two faculty members. Dr. Wesley Bagby, professor of history, enunciated his liberal understanding of U.S. involvement in Vietnam and his opposition to that continuing involvement. James Whisker, assistant professor of political science, clearly delineated his conservative stance on America's Southeast Asian endeavors. Students who knew what they thought but didn't know why were likely to find out from one or the other of the two men. Another issue, one not ever clearly resolved, surfaced during the October Moratorium. Either the University does or does not engage in chemical and biological warfare research. With journalists and public relations men arguing about contracts only a corporation lawyer could fully understand, most of the University public was left wondering.

—NOVEMBER—
—DECEMBER—

The November Moratorium called some of the October participants to D.C. for the mass demonstration, but the enthusiasm of the large October group had waned in the intervening month and participation dwindled.

Mining disasters and an increasing awareness of the University's West Virginia setting made students more sympathetic with coal miners' complaints. Nevertheless, a DA-sponsored conference on mining health and safety, the last issue-oriented event of first semester, drew only meagre student attendance. A small group of students registered their sympathies by joining in the coal miners' struggles for improved legislation, a battle partially won in 1969-1970.

many changing times

—JANUARY—

The Student Activist League accomplished at least one goal in January, that of arousing student interest in student causes. That interest ran pro and con, sometimes heatedly. The precipitant was SAL's list of 13 demands upon the administration. Items 1 and 2 called for student investigation of Mountainlair and Bookstore operations. Library hours, Black studies, and student housing comprised the next three. SAL demanded a student committee to review curricula and faculty, a pass-fail core curriculum, a University-hired lawyer for free legal aid to students, a University commitment to Board of Regents reorganization, an immediate end to academic credit for ROTC, an open admissions policy, the right of WVU employees to unionization, and an end to restrictions on graduate school admissions.

—FEBRUARY—

February put two more issues into the headlines. The day after the Citizen's League for Environmental Action Now (CLEAN) organized to take on pollution, a journalism faculty proposal to sever the DA from the J School sparked "Save the DA" fever in many media-minded students.

—MARCH—

Campus elections breathed life into windy March, with allegations ranging from Communist influence to smear tactics. Party platforms reflected the issue-oriented nature of the campus mood with the Mountaineer freedom Party (in its second year) including SAL's 13 demands in its program. Student Party and All-Campus Party once again divided the top offices.

—APRIL—

Earth Day, too, was observed here April 22, with a conference and various programs for educating the student and the public about the insidious destruction of earth, air, and water.

In fact April was the month of most numerous issues on campus—women's liberation took over an issue of the DA in April. Morgantown City Council attempted to prevent the appearance of Chicago Seven lawyer William Kunstler at WVU in April, campus Blacks planned an April week of programs to foster Black awareness, and the discovery of the bodies of two tragically murdered University freshmen in April triggered the organization of students to demand safety improvements on campus and in Morgantown. Once again the students held a public rally, and the safety—and security-minded group marched to City Hall with their proposals.

—MAY—

Finally came May. No one familiar with the annual campus schedule of events would expect a university to erupt over a national issue during finals week. But at WVU and many other schools, it happened.

With the Vietnam War officially expanding into Cambodia, no matter how temporarily, and with the deaths of four Kent State students in an anti-war demonstration there, West Virginia University students—some of them—literally took to the streets. At times the issues seemed drowned in alternating floods of emotion and numerical curiosity. A peak estimate of demonstrators was 500, while some 2000 watched silently or with heckling. A couple hundred demonstrators faced 38 riot-helmeted state police in the streets at Grumbein's Island. One man, President Harlow, was the object of much of the disturbance, for the streets had been taken as an ultimatum for a public statement from him on Cambodian involvement.

Those on the outside called it The Riot, those on the inside called it The Revolution, while both knew it was really neither. The leftists and liberals were defending a street not all of them had wanted to seize, but if that was where the line was drawn, then that was the place to take a stand. Most of the spectators simply spectated, but a sizeable faction urged on the police, yelling for them to crack the heads of demonstrators. They could have been in the stands at a football game.

The demonstrators chanted "Peace Now" and anti-facist slogans and "We want Harlow."

The administration maintained a taut silence.

Then there was tear gas. The breeze divided it between the leftists in the streets and the rightists on the 'Lair steps. But still the streets were occupied.

The eventual settlement is a credit to the cool of the cops, who promised to leave—and did, and the persuasive power of some prominent demonstrators, who promised to clear the streets—and did.

A "Victory" Celebration the next day ended the three-day event on two notes: 1) relaxation from the double tension of confrontation and finals and 2) an undercurrent of promised activism in the months to follow. And in spite of the issue-crammed nature of 1969-1970, much grist was left for activist mills—still and always the war, until its end and the end of all such wars; housing discrimination against students and especially against Blacks; poverty, rural and urban; pollution, women's lib, and other problems yet to be faced.

"TROUBLED WATERS"

Because the most stridently vocal students are on the left, one may overlook the right as well as the center of that silent majority for whom President Nixon claims to speak. And no one can deny that WVU has its conservative traditionalists and its silent middle. Is this change a universal at WVU in 1969-1970?

Perhaps the story of change on these pages relies too much on the turbulence at the edge of the stream. Nevertheless, ripples—even if not indicative of the water's depth—do indicate the direction and strength of its currents. Ripples appear where the current drives water against an obstruction, and so they reveal both the obstruction and the current.

Change is like water in yet another way, for a stream is both ever-moving and ever the same stream. So, too, is WVU now a university of change and still the same West Virginia University.

ENGINEERS' CREED
As a Professional Engineer, I dedicate my professiona knowledge and skill to the advancement and betterment of human welfare.
I pledge:
To give the utmost of performance;
To participate in none but honest enterprise;
To live and work according to the laws of man and the highest standards of professional conduct;
To place service before profit, the honor and standing of the profession before personal advantage, and the public welfare above all other considerations.
In humility and with need for Divine Guidance, I make this pledge.

'Sit-in' staged on High Street

About 30 young people staged some sort of "sit-in" on High Street yesterday afternoon, but police last night said no details were available

It was reported the "demonstrators", many of them carrying chairs, staged a "sit-in" near Pleasant Street. There were indications the demonstration was staged for the benefit of a camerman, source unknown.

One person reportedly was arrested in the demonstration, but police had no details.

Old terms are continually being redefined. Traditionally, royalty has been an elected representative who typifies a specific organization or event. Can royalty by even more than this? This year we hold up the looking glass for you to see and remember not only our elected royalty but also our unelected and unsung nobility—the typical WVU coed. Join us as we see her at work, at play, at living—doing those things she alone does Best.

On September 13, 1969, West Virginia University began a new era. The Mountaineers had the honor of playing the first game of college football's second century. It was also the first game played on the new Astro-Turf at Mountaineer Field.

A near capacity crowd was on hand to see WVU stun Cincinnati 57-11. The offense made 27 first downs while running up a total of 523 yards. The WVU defense, led by Carl Crennel and George Henshaw, stopped Cincinnati with five first downs, 16 yards rushing, and 107 yards offense. Jim Braxton ran for 113 yards, made three touchdowns, and kicked four extra points.

The following week, before 31,000 rain-soaked fans, the Mountaineers easily handled the Maryland Terrapins, 31-7. With most of the action packed into the first half, Braxton once again stood out, rushing 161 yards and scoring 19 points. The defense, led by Henshaw and Crennel, limited the Maryland offense to 106 yards.

WVU had a tougher time the following Saturday night in New Orleans. It took a second half comeback to defeat Tulane 35-17. Oscar Patrick, WVU's leading pass receiver, was lost for the season with a leg injury in the first half. The second half was a well-balanced combination of rushing and passing. Bob Gresham led the ground game with 169 yards.

WVU coasted to an easy 32-0 victory over VMI for its fourth win of the season. Leading 29-0 at the half, the first team retired for the remainder of the game. Mike Sherwood in his fourteenth game surpassed the WVU career record for toal offense.

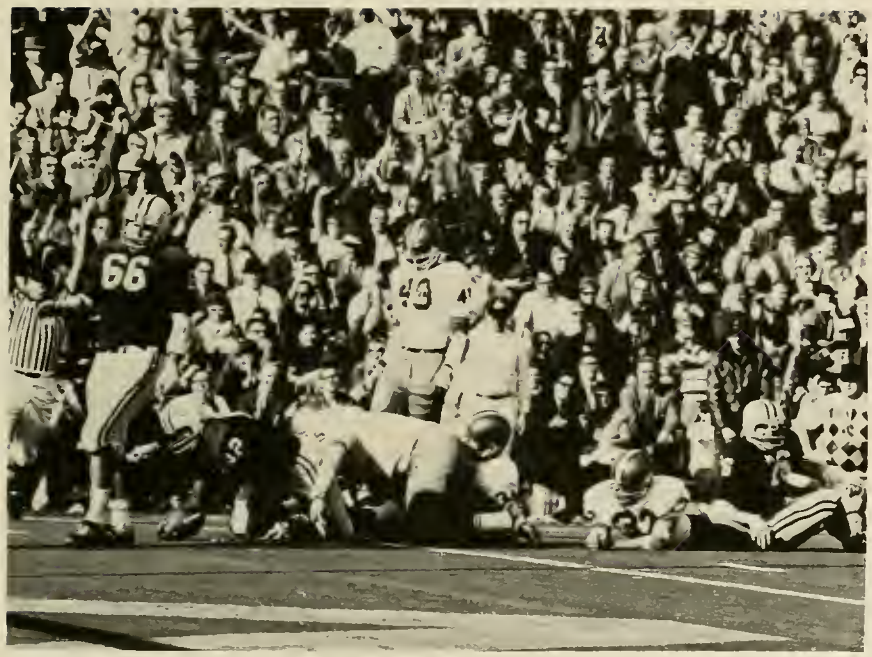
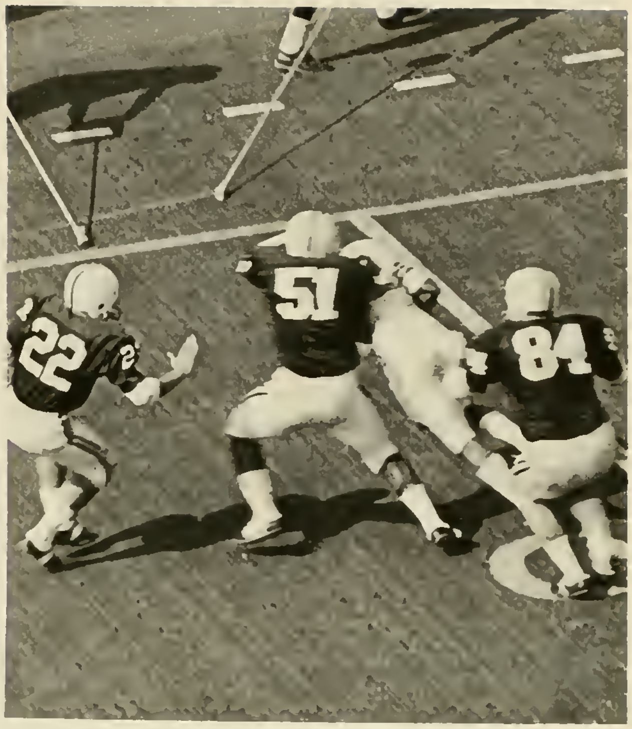
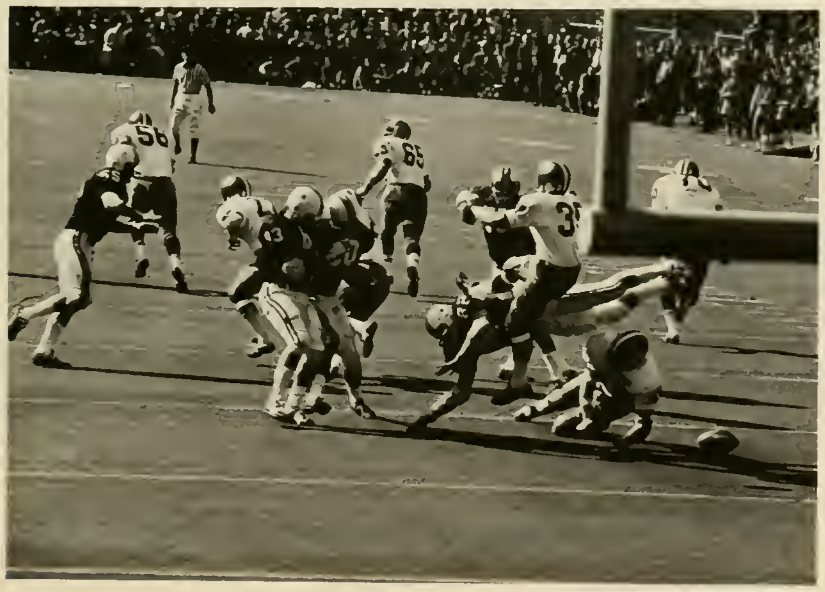
For the second year in a row, it would be a battle of two undefeated teams as WVU journeyed to State College to meet Penn State. The game had been a sellout for months. Many WVU students stood in line all night at Beaver Stadium to buy the few standing room tickets that would be on sale the next day. Penn State, undefeated in twenty-two straight games, pushed through WVU 20-0. Going into the game, WVU was first in the nation in rushing offense and second in total defense. Starting on the WVU six yard line, the Mountaineers marched to the Penn State 25 yard line before a bobbled pitchout stopped the drive and changed the course of the whole game. The Mountaineers never regained their momentum. Late in the first half, Penn State scored the only touchdown needed to win.



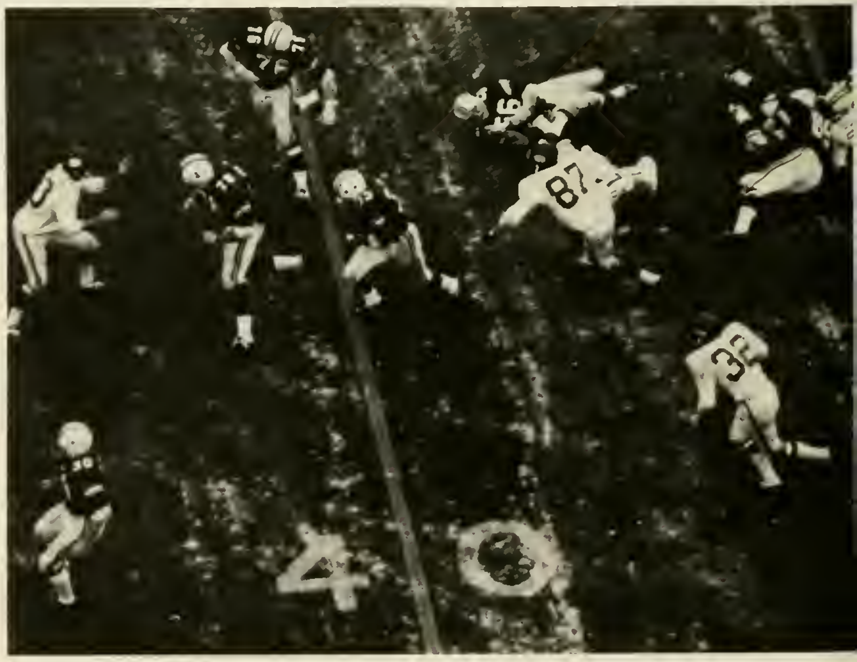


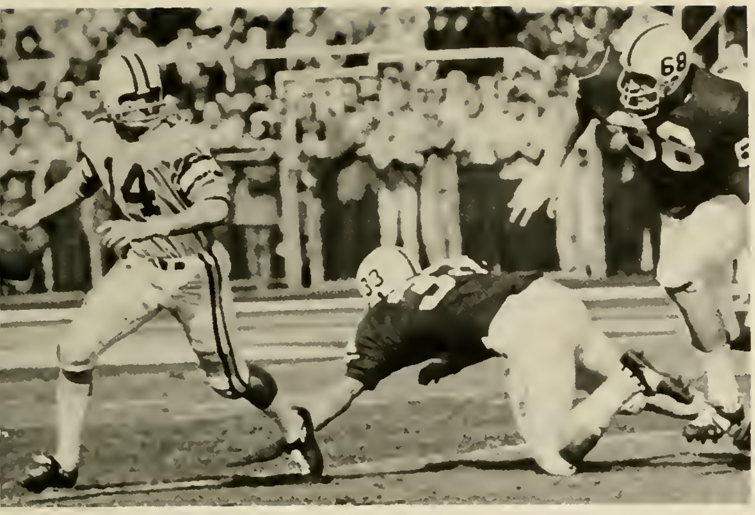
Having a free weekend, the Mountaineers prepared for the Homecoming battle with Pitt. Mountaineer Field, with a record crowd of 35,500, had fans sitting on the AstroTurf. For the first time, WVU won its third game in a row over Pitt by a score of 49-18—the largest margin of victory ever over the Panthers. John Hale blocked two punts in a row deep in Pitt territory to set up a pair of quick WVU touchdowns. Ed Williams ran for 199 yards and three touchdowns.

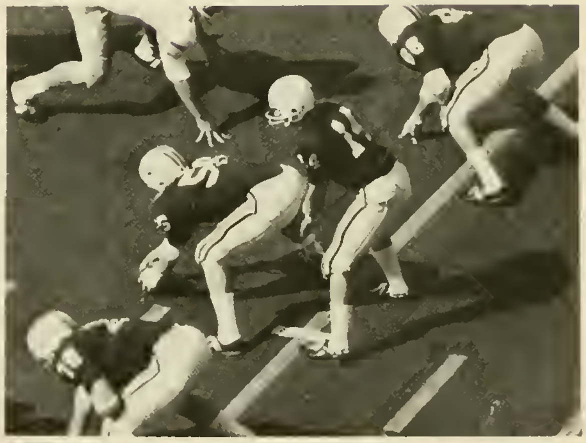


It was snowing again as WVU upset Syracuse 13-10. The Mountaineers couldn't get their offense rolling in the first half and trailed 10-0 late in the third quarter. Suddenly both offense and defense came alive. It took only one minute and forty-eight seconds for the Mountaineers to put two touchdowns on the scoreboard while the defense stopped the Orangemen cold.

With their most successful regular season in 47 years, the Mountaineers received a well-deserved invitation to the Peach Bowl. In control all the way, the Mountaineers defeated South Carolina 14-3. With WVU leading 7-3 late in the fourth quarter, South Carolina made one of their strongest drives of the game but were stopped short by West Virginia's outstanding defense. The WVU offense took over and scored the final touchdown only seconds before the end of the game. WVU threatened to score many times as they outrushed the Gamecocks 356 to 64 yards. By gaining 208 yards, a new WVU single game record, Ed Williams was voted the game's most outstanding player. All-America Carl Crennel was voted the most outstanding defensive player.







Playing before their third sellout contest in a row, the Mountaineers edged Kentucky 7-6, to spoil the Wildcats' homecoming. WVU had to rely almost solely on its defense as the constant rain hindered the offense. Mike Slater intercepted four passes to tie a school record and save the game for the Mountaineers.

It was raining again as Bob Gresham scored three touchdowns to lead WVU to a 31-0 victory over William & Mary.

The final home game of the season was played in 19 degree temperature. It had snowed for two straight days before the game and volunteers worked all night to keep the AstroTurf cleared. Snow was still falling as WVU beat Richmond 33-21. Gresham and Braxton shared the spotlight as they scored two touchdowns each.

Soccer

Inexperience took its toll as the Mountaineer soccer team suffered its first losing season since 1961. The booters of first-year coach John McGrath started fast by going undefeated in their first three games. Then the offense stalled and the defense loosened up as they lost four games in a row. The season ended with a 4-5-1 record.

The unexpected loss of several returnees turned 1969-70 into a rebuilding season for George Nedeff's Mountaineers. Freshman heavyweight Bob Vettorel was the brightest spot in the 4-6 season. Vettorel lost only one match of ten and that one on riding time.

The official West Virginia University final basketball statistics revealed the sophomore Wil Robinson and senior captain Bob Hummell shared the spotlight in almost all possible categories. Robinson tallied 520 points in 26 games for a 20.0 average. His average makes him the second West Virginia sophomore in history to average more than 20 per contest. The first was "Hot Rod" Hundley. Hummell finished second in Mountainceer point production with a 14.0 average. His career point total of 1,137 places him seventh in that category.

Other 1970 Mountaineer leaders were junior forward Dick Symons with a 52.4 field goal percentage and senior forward Larry Woods with 236 rebounds. One significant team mark showed the unusually small West Virginia cagers out—rebounding taller opponents by a 1252 to 1184 margin. "It was a most frustrating season," WVU head coach Sonny Moran said of the 11-15 record.

Mountaineer Fans– the Spirit of West Virginia

Athletic Director Brown

Robert N. Browns efforts during his 20 years of outstanding service to West Virginia University are reflected in numerous improvements which have created prominence and prestige for WVU Athletics.

"Red" initiated his association with West Virginia University athletics in 1950, coaching the basketball team. After four prosperous seasons he was appointed to the Director of Athletics position which he still holds.

Leading the 13-sport Department of Intercollegiate Athletics, Brown maintains his policy of representative scheduling which features pairings from neighborhood rivalries to coast-to-coast battles. Under his direction, expansion of athletic facilities has complimented this plan.

Already considered one of the best basketball facilities in the nation, the WVU Coliseum has emerged as yet another multipurpose structure. The impressive 14,000 seat arena will house the School of Physical Education with offices for faculty and coaches. A new baseball diamond along with soccer and football practice fields and tennis courts surround the Coliseum to form the University's athletic complex. A new track and field complex, complete with a regulation Olympic size one-quarter mile, all-weather track, will serve WVU's track team and is located next to the Coliseum.

AstoTurf at Mountaineer Field exemplifies the Brown Philosophy. The artificial surface assures favorable field conditions at all times for both the football and soccer squads. Even general recreation has broadened its program and benefited from the durable "carpet".

Another addition to the sports scene at WVU, conceived and realized during "Red's" 16 years as athletic director, is the triple-tiered, blue and gold press box, rated as one of the finest in the East.

While improvements have been completed on the football dressing and training room areas, plans are still being formulated for additonal seating at the stadium.

Robert N. "Red" Brown has "lived" all of these dramatic and purposeful developments. They illustrate his policy of progress —and 20 years of action.

To Our Patrons

TO THE MONTICOLA ADVERTISERS

The cost of any major publication is great; without help from our advertisers, the cost of this yearbook would surpass the monetary resources of any student.

Placing your advertising in our yearbook emphasizes your interest in West Virginia college people. To recall memories of those college years, what better way than to leaf through a yearbook? Here your ad will be permanently preserved, to be noticed in years to come.

The Monticola is an instrument of communication between the often isolated life within a university and the active every day life in the outside world. With continual communication between you and the university, the terms "town" and "gown" will no longer create an antithesis.

With greater enrollment each year at West Virginia University. the Monticola can be expected to parallel this growth. This is only possible when our advertisers maintain their support of our publication.

Therefore, WE SINCERELY THANK YOU.

Hunting Season

The search for new gas fields goes on all the time in West Virginia as geologists from Consolidated Gas Supply—Hope's parent company—prowl the hills for indications that gas exists in underground formations.

Rock characteristics, soil, topography, drainage patterns—even vegetation—all supply valuable geological information. It's highly technical but exciting—hunting usually is.

Geology is only one aspect of the natural gas business. There are many other interesting careers in production and distribution. And most assuredly—a career at Hope is a career with a challenge and a future.

Why make the nation's business yours?

Because you seek a career with challenge. Purpose. You want to help. And you want to get involved.

You'll find opportunity and fulfillment in private business, built on the capitalistic system that has given us the world's highest living standards.

American business continually searches for new and improved products, for better ways to do things, and keep costs down. Wherever there are problems to solve — in our cities, in space, under the sea — private enterprise responds with the talent and resources to bring about efficient, workable solutions.

Your work and achievement in the corporate community can be satisfying and rewarding, your contribution important. Check into opportunities in business enterprise.

TONS OF TIN CANS

Perhaps you haven't thought much about it, but there's probably some of our steel in your home. If you have canned soft drinks or corn, beer or bug-bombs, peaches or pet food, it's a good bet that some of the cans are made of Weirton Steel's tinplate. Tons of tin cans bring to American homes an endless variety of foods, beverages, and anything else that can be canned. People enjoy the convenience of the mighty tin can, and our job at Weirton Steel is to make sure that you can continue to enjoy it.
